The breadth and depth of Imam Salie's conversation is reminiscent of Renaissance visionaries of old, led by the likes of da Vinci and Khayyam. Speaking on philanthropy, global ethics, architecture, democracy, spiritual values, non-violence and green housing, Dr. Imam Salie has been invited across five continents to share his story with a wide audience. Currently the Director of the Islamic Studies Program at the University of Detroit Mercy, Dr. Imam Salie has journeyed through an undergraduate degree in Islamic Studies, Education, a graduate degree in Arabic, six years of intensive seminary studies in Islamic Jurisprudence (Alim Fasil), an MBA, a doctorate in Business leadership (DBA), and is completing a second PhD in Islamic Studies with a focus on Islamic Medical Ethics.
