Marshall M. Fredericks Sculpture Museum
The Marshall M. Fredericks Sculpture Museum will be hosting the exhibition Memories of World War II, Photographs from the Archives of THE ASSOCIATED PRESS through January 19, 2013.

The AP exhibit is a spectrum of 126 photos from all theaters of the war and the home front, ranging from AP photographer Joe Rosenthal’s classic Iwo Jima flag raising in 1945 to scores of pictures not seen in decades.

The photos are “personal history relived” for those who fought the war and millions more for whom it was “part of their lives,” writes former U.S. Sen. Bob Dole. “For many millions more, the postwar generations, who know the war only as distant history, these images will serve as the record of a shared and shaping era in our nation’s history.”

Many photos credit AP staff photographers by name; others came from anonymous Army or Navy photographers. Some were killed in combat; others went on to postwar prominence in their craft. “You had the same fears as the GIs, but you had to think about the picture,” says retired AP photojournalist Max Desfor, who covered the battle of Okinawa and Japan’s surrender aboard the battleship USS Missouri, and later won a Pulitzer Prize in Korea. “My camera was my shield, and I didn’t even think about the idea that a bullet might hit me.”

The showing at the Marshall M. Fredericks Sculpture Museum is part of a national tour that began in 2005 and is made possible in part by a grant from the Michigan Humanities Council, an affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

University Gallery
The University Gallery will be hosting the exhibit “The Michigan Water Color Society’s 2012 Traveling Exhibit” through Dec. 8. The exhibit will feature watercolors and water-media paintings by artists from across the state of Michigan.
