Secretary to the Board of Control
Kelly Helmreich describes herself as a “people person” and it would take the average person likely all of 30 seconds in her presence to agree. Her bubbly personality suits her well when working with communication and theatre faculty and students, some of whom refer to her as a “second mother.”

Helmreich has spent a decade in her current role after a few months in SVSU’s cashier’s office. During that time, the number of theatre productions has grown from four per year to nine.

“More shows means there’s more for me to do,” she said. “I love it.”

Helmreich schedules auditions, orders scripts and does the budget at the end of every production to see if it turned a profit. In addition to assisting faculty with exams, syllabi and the like, she also lends a hand to the annual Sims Public Speaking Competition and the forensics team.

“Every day is different,” she said. “I never know what new tasks are going to come up.”

Helmreich also signed up for a major role as one of the lead organizers for the regional Kennedy Center American College Theater Festival hosted by SVSU in January. In addition to handling registration for several competitions and arranging a few dinners, she also was the liaison for 50 “VIPs.”

“That was making travel arrangements, hotel reservations, and setting up a shuttle schedule for each VIP.”

No easy task, but Helmreich gained confidence from attending the 2008 festival in Milwaukee.

“I got to see every piece of the festival to see how it was run,” she said.

Helmreich’s favorite pastime is camping with her husband Roger and sons Jacob, 17, and Carl, 14, especially in the Traverse City area.

When her SVSU work day is done, Helmreich goes home to a working farm where the family raises beef cattle.

“We have about 50 head right now, but usually we have more than 100.”

She also does the budget, pays the bills and pitches in to bale hay and straw each fall.

Helmreich already is gearing up for summer theatre camps, ordering art supplies and name tags; preparations for the 2010 theater festival “started the day after” this year’s edition concluded. Despite the enormous workload, Helmreich “was actually sad” when it ended because the people departed.

“You got to know everybody,” she explained.

She’s ready for their return – and the work that comes with it. “I absolutely enjoyed every bit of the challenge.”
Cathy Davis
Faculty Secretary • April 2009

You’re never too old to learn. Cathy Davis has proven that adage to be true throughout her working life, starting with 28 years as a waitress, followed by seven years in SVSU’s Financial Aid office and now nearly two years into her current role as a faculty secretary.

“This has been a perfect fit. When I came over here, I’ve really stretched as an employee,” she said. “This role is different every day. I have different strategies I have to use to accommodate students, faculty and anyone else who comes into the office.”

Davis describes her responsibilities as “keeping the ship afloat” as various faculty request assistance. She types professors’ documents, creates PowerPoint presentations, and performs other clerical duties, often juggling tasks as she goes because there are “a lot of deadlines that have to be met.”

Davis says one of the challenges of her new job has been learning new computer software, but even while getting up to speed her suite-mates were “welcoming and supportive.”

“I tell them I’m a diamond in the rough. I still need a little more polishing, but I’m working on that,” she said, laughing before turning serious about her personal development.

“I’ve really grown in the last two years. I’m proud of how much I’ve learned. Working with people in education, that’s what it’s all about: spreading your wings and learning.”

The “people contact” is Davis’ favorite part of her job.

“The student interaction is what I love,” she said. “Here I get to see students going into their different programs such as the medical field. It’s a different interaction than just working on their financial aid.”

In her leisure time, Davis enjoys interacting with family, though that has changed too now that her two sons have graduated from SVSU and one of them has moved to Syracuse, N.Y.

She is already looking forward to a mini-reunion at Higgins Lake this summer. “That will be an absolute joy to have all the kids around.”

Other pastimes for Davis include gardening and teaching Sunday school, but she eagerly shares that her job is a source of joy.

“I think when you absolutely love coming to work every day and there’s a respect shown both ways ... it just doesn’t get better than that. So many people don’t have a job or don’t enjoy their job; that I have this job is such a blessing. It’s a dream come true.”
