QUINLAN TO TELL HOW FOREIGN POLICY IS MADE

Foreign service specialist C.J. Patrick Quinlan, diplomat in residence at Oakland University this year, will speak on "How Foreign Policy is Made" next Thursday, Nov. 30, at 3:30 p.m. in the faculty lounge. His appearance will be sponsored by the SVSC Honors Program. A dinner in Quinlan's honor will be given at 6:30 p.m. in Doan Center, where he will speak on "Careers in Foreign Service". Reservations may be made for the dinner by contacting Dr. Eric Petersen at ext. 4305.

During his 27 years foreign career, Quinlan has seen duty as foreign service officer in Berlin; at the U.S. embassy in Karachi, Pakistan; with the department of State in Washington as a research analyst for South Asia and as assistant Berlin desk officer; as the officer assigned to open and take charge of the American Consulate in Kanduna, Nigeria and the American Embassy Branch Office in Sanaa, Northern Yemen; as a supervisory political officer in Cairo; Consul to Adana, Turkey; Deputy public affairs adviser for Near East and South Asia affairs with the department of state in Washington; as an officer with the Division of Human Rights, Office of Economic Opportunities; as the person who opened and took charge of the American Embassy in Muscat, Oman and as consul to Salzburg, Austria.

He will discuss the student intern work study program with the Department of State which gives a small number of highly qualified students an opportunity to gain first hand knowledge of the governmental foreign affairs process.
Quinlan will also tell about Scholar-Diplomat Seminars, which provide an opportunity for educators and other participants to work with and exchange views with their professional counterparts in the Department of State.

NAACP EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR AT SVSC

Benjamin Lawson Hooks, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, will speak at SVSC on Monday, December 4. His 8:00 p.m. lecture at the college theater is sponsored by the SVSC program board.

Hooks has combined careers as a lawyer, minister, and businessman. In July 1972, he became the first black to be sworn in as a member of the Federal Communications Commission. After serving for five years, he assumed his present position.

He holds a J.D. degree from DePaul University of Law and is a member of the American, Tennessee and National Bar Associations and the Judicial Council of the NBA. He has also been ordained to preach by the Baptist Church, and, in addition, has pursued an active business career. He was co-founder and vice president of the Mutual Federal Savings and Loan Association of Memphis and has served on numerous bank, religious, human relations and community affairs committees. Tickets will cost $3.00 or $1.50 for students and are available through the student activities office at ext. 4260 or at the door.
