Homecoming Week Offers Varied Activities

It may not be Kansas, but alumni of SVSU will be reminded that "there's no place like home" as Homecoming activities take place from Oct. 1 through 6. Many events are open to the campus community and to the public.

"Red and Blue Day" on Monday, Oct. 1 will get everyone in the proper spirit by encouraging plenty of the University's colors in wearing apparel. Free popcorn will be handed out in Brown Concourse to those sporting lots of red and blue. Wimpy little bits don't count, event planners say.

SafeHaven will sponsor a trivia contest at 10 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 2. The competition is open to teams of three. Call ext. 4168 for more information.

On Wednesday, Oct. 3, at 10 p.m., Chicago's Lee J. Ramsey, hypnotist and comedic magician, will take the stage in the lower level of Doan Center. Ramsey has performed on several TV and radio shows, as well as opening for such stars as Gallagher, Henny Youngman and Bo Diddley. He has appeared at numerous local and national clubs, including Zanies, Who's On First, Funny Firm and Wackos. Ramsey's one-hour show is free.

An annual campus favorite, the SVSU Spirit Bonfire and "Yell like Hell" competition, takes place in the recreation area near the Bookstore at 10 p.m. Thursday.

Friday's events include judging of the annual window painting contest at 3 p.m. Criteria include illustration of the Homecoming theme, originality and color.

From 4 - 6 p.m. the SVSU Faculty Association will host its annual cork and cheese party in the Alumni Lounge. The event is open to all alumni, faculty and staff.

The 10th annual Cardinal Run will be held at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Oct. 6. Participants will raise money for SVSU's athletic program. For information on signing up for this fundraiser, call ext. 4165.

"Brunch with the Bunch" is an opportunity to enjoy a delicious, low-cost meal on the SVSU campus. Brunch will be served from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 6. Reservations should be made no later than Friday, Oct. 5, by calling ext. 4170.

Finally, what would Homecoming be without a football game and a King and Queen? Join the Cardinals as they take on Ashland College at noon on Saturday, Oct. 6. This year's theme, "There's No Place Like Home," will take on an ironic twist because the game won't exactly be played at home. Due to the continuing construction of the new Cardinal Football Stadium, the contest will take place at Saginaw's Arthur Hill High School.

During the half-time show, featuring the SVSU Marching Band, the 1990 Homecoming King and Queen will be crowned.

Homecoming week activities are sponsored by the following SVSU organizations: Athletic Department, Campus Activities, Campus Dining Services, Faculty Association, Marching Band, Residence Hall Association, Red Pride, Residential Life and SafeHaven. For more information, call ext. 4170.

The Housing and Residential Life staff is seeking faculty and staff interested in becoming involved in student programs. Such interaction can make students aware that they may share goals, interests and ideals similar to those held by faculty and staff. For information on ways you can make a difference, call the Housing and Residential Life office at ext. 4255.

Alma College Print Show Comes to SVSU Gallery

A traveling art exhibition assembled by Alma College will be making a stop here in October.

The Ninth Annual Alma College Statewide Print Competition exhibition will complete its 10-month tour with an Oct. 8-26 showing in the University Art Gallery. The display includes 44 works by 40 Michigan artists and is described by juror Evan Summer, an award-winning printmaker with an M.F.A. from Yale University, as one of high quality comparing favorably to national shows. According to Dr. Barron Hirsch, professor of art, the show provides examples of the many styles of printmaking, reflecting national art trends.

"The fall shows scheduled at the University Art Gallery are designed to show students a wide variety of work being done by Michigan artists in many different mediums," he said. "The Alma College show is a long-standing, established major Midwestern printmaking show. Some work included in the display is experimental in nature; some combines two or more printmaking techniques."

The University Art Gallery is open from 1 to 5 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday, and from 9 to 11 a.m. on Tuesday and Thursday.

Art Lecture Scheduled

Dr. Judith Gustafson, director of the Smithsonian Institution's Midwest Regional Center Archives of American Art, is scheduled to speak at 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 14 in Arbury Fine Arts Center. Her talk is open to the public free of charge.

The Archives of American Art was founded in Detroit in 1954 and today is part of the Smithsonian Institution. Its holdings include documentary materials on thousands of American artists, virtually all of which are available on microfilm through local public libraries.

"Dr. Gustafson will speak on this fascinating repository of information about American art and artists," said Dr. Michael Panhorst, director of the Marshall M. Fredericks Sculpture Gallery at SVSU. The sculpture gallery will be open for tours after Gustafson's presentation,

Panhorst said, and light refreshments will be served.

Local artists, art historians, archivists, librarians and other interested individuals all are encouraged to attend the presentation, Panhorst said.

SVSU, Delta Offer Travel Course

SVSU and Delta College are offering the opportunity to earn college credit while learning about the cultures and social changes of Eastern Europe. The 22-day tour, scheduled to depart from Detroit Metro Airport on Thursday, June 27, 1991, includes trips to East and West Germany, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Austria.

A variety of course options are open to those who sign up for the international study program, according to Dr. John R. Willertz, professor of history. The choices open to students earning SVSU credit are history 275, History of Eastern Europe; history 390, Selected Topics in History; humanities 290, Selected Topics in Humanities; and Teacher Education 509, Teaching History Elective. Willertz will instruct the courses and will conduct class meetings before departure on the tour. All participants must sign up for at least three hours of academic credit, Willertz said, and must pay any applicable tuition and fees.

Those wishing to take advantage of "early bird" travel prices should register by Monday, Oct. 15, Willertz said. The travel package, which includes airfare from Detroit, first class hotels, all ground transportation and a majority of meals, is approximately $2,900 during the early registration period. He expects transportation costs to rise after the October date.

"I like to emphasize that there will be scheduled meetings with university professors and students along the way," Willertz said, "to talk about the changes that are occurring now in Eastern Europe." A tour of the Berlin Wall's former site is on the itinerary.

"The tour includes some of the finest music capitals in the world, and there will be at least five concerts during the time we are in Eastern Europe," Willertz said.

For more information, contact Willertz at ext. 4381.

Dr. Robert C. Braddock, director of International Programs, is seeking students interested in study in Japan. Faculty are asked to contact him with nominations.

Braddock also is looking for faculty to teach at the Midwest Consortium for Study Abroad's Vienna Center next year. In return for teaching two classes and serving as site administrator, selected faculty receive full pay, benefits, an apartment and miscellaneous expenses. MCSA compensates SVSU for replacement faculty to cover teaching assignments here.

Call Braddock at ext. 4360 or 4268 regarding either of these exchange programs.

SVSU Host to Technology Access Forum

The Saginaw Valley Manufacturers' Association is teaming up with the Saginaw Area Growth Alliance, the Michigan Department of Commerce, Michigan Modernization Service, the U.S. Small Business Administration and SVSU's Business and Industrial Development Institute to offer a Technology Access Forum. The meeting takes place in Wickes Hall from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday, Sept. 28.

According to Amy Ballantyne, director of entrepreneurial resources for BIDI, the forum will provide area manufacturers with information about the various technology and support services available to them. Manufacturers also will meet other manufacturers and public resource personnel who can offer valuable assistance to their companies.

Speakers include representatives from General Motors Saginaw Division and The Dow Chemical Company, who will discuss why large firms require suppliers to maintain high quality standards. John Cleveland of Michigan Department of Commerce's Michigan Modernization Service will explain how to access public resources to acquire or upgrade technologies. Three area manufacturers will present case studies of their experiences working with public sector resources to obtain technology access. For cost and additional information about the forum, contact the BIDI office at ext. 4048.

Honorary Degree Nominees Sought

Each year at Commencement, SVSU awards honorary degrees to individuals of distinction. President Eric Gilbertson invites members of the campus community to nominate people deserving of this honor. Nominations, which should include supporting documentation, submitted to the President's Office will be taken to the Board of Control in December and recipients will be announced in April.

Honorary degrees are awarded to individuals who exhibit one or more of the following characteristics: a record of outstanding achievement in one's vocation or avocation; strong support for higher education; special distinction in activities designed to improve the quality of life; philanthropic support for education and, in particular, for SVSU.

SEAT BELTS MAKE SENSE

You wouldn't drive at night without using headlights. You wouldn't drive to the store if your brakes didn't work. That's just common sense. So is buckling your seat belt.

Odds are that you'll be involved in a car crash at least once in your life. The Department of Public Safety urges the University community to buckle up when driving and riding to, from and around campus. Buckling up greatly reduces chances of serious injury or death if you are involved in an automobile accident.

If you don't use seat belts, ask yourself the following question. If you knew you'd be in a serious car crash today, would you wear your safety belt?

Ronald E. Trepkowski, Dept. of Public Safety

Professional Profile

— Dr. Susie Emond, professor of education, attended a two-week conference on "Whole Language in Practice" at the University of Melbourne (Australia) from June 21 to July 5. This special institute for American teachers, sponsored by the University of New Hampshire, capped Emond's first summer sabbatical study investigating the philosophy of whole language to teach children to read. Emond also begins her second year as the SVSU representative to Midland Public Schools' "Focus 1991" task force. The goal of this group is to provide the Board of Education with recommendations by April 1991 to improve K-6th grade instruction.

— Dr. Altaf-Ur-Rahman, professor of electrical engineering, has received a National Communications Forum (NCF) grant to attend the NCF 1990 Conference in Chicago Oct. 8-10. This year's university-industry colloquium on "International Competitiveness and Engineering Education" provides an excellent opportunity to learn industry trends in the 1990s, and how engineering education can support those trends.

— An article by Dr. Kerry Segel, associate professor of English/Reading, was published in the Bay County Literacy Council's fall newsletter, Tutor Talk. Segel, president of the council, titled his article "Let's all celebrate literacy this fall!"

Freshman tailback Brett Mullins rushed for 110 yards and three touchdowns to lead the comeback. SVSU travels to NCAA Division II No. 6-ranked Grand Valley State University Saturday.

The volleyball team has a 4-4 overall mark and 1-2 GLIAC record after dropping a close match at Grand Valley last week. GVSU won by scores of 16-14, 10-15, 16-14 and 17-15.

The men's cross country team won the FSU meet for the third straight year, with junior Jeff Boks finishing third to lead SVSU.

Women's tennis split a pair of GLIAC matches last week, downing Lake Superior 8-1 and falling to Michigan Tech by a 7-2 margin. The Lady Cardinals are 1-1 in the league and 1-2 overall.

SVSU's golf team finished sixth among 15 teams at the Tri-State University Fall Invitational Saturday.
