This Handout is based on the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, Sixth Edition, 2010.

General Guidelines:

- Start References on a new page, continuing the running head and page number; center the word References at the top
- Include the sources cited in the text, except for interviews and other non-retrievable data
- Alphabetize by the first word of the reference (the last name of the first author, or the first significant word of a corporate author, or the first significant word of the title if the work has no author). Use initials only for author's first and middle names
- Each entry also includes the year of publication, title, and publishing information
- APA uses a hanging indent: The first line of each reference aligns with the margin; subsequent lines are indented

Conventions:

- Use periods between elements and at the citation end (except for website URLs)
- Do not use quotation marks around article titles
- Use commas between the names of multiple authors and the ampersand (&) before the last author's name.
- Capitalize only the first word (and the first word after a colon) of the title of articles and books.
- Capitalize all proper names and periodical titles
- If it is available, include a journal issue number (in parentheses) after the volume number
- Maintain double-spacing (examples below are single-spaced only to conserve space)

Microsoft Office 2007 notes:

- The basic APA template in Office 2007 does not include a field for journal volume and issue number; add these manually or click the box for "Show All Bibliography Fields" for a complete template. Volume number and issue number (if available) are necessary when citing journal articles
- Change the title of the page that lists sources to References. (It should not be Bibliography)
