These three images are from a portfolio titled, "Japan Re-discovered". They reflect my personal encounters with cityscapes, landscapes, and people of Japan where I was born and raised for the first 18 years of my life. I realized that I am looking at them with a foreign perspective. I am looking at them as a naturalized American citizen who have lived in American soil for over 40 + years. This portfolio has directed and forced me to look back at my native country and re-discovering new environment and new relationships between people of Japan and myself.
